Sacramento Cordovas' Fred Brown pitches a 10-inning perfect game, facing only 30 batters, in a 1-0 win over the visiting Stockton Millers in a California State League game at the Cordovas' Oak Park Recreation Grounds.

In a game that takes only one hour and 25 minutes to play, the lone run is tallied in the bottom of the tenth inning when Sacramento catcher Hennie Iverson reaches third base on a throwing error by second baseman Campbell and then has a successful steal of home when Millers catcher Conrad drops the ball.

SUMMARY
 First base on error—Sacramento 1. First base on called balls—Off, Moskiman 2. Left on bases—Sacramento 5. Struck out—By Moskiman 4, by Brown 4. Hit by pitcher—Graham. Double play—Hamilton to Campbell. Time of game—1 hour and 25 minutes. Umpire—Arlett. Scorer—H. J. McClatchy.

Stockton's William "Doc" Moskiman, an ex-medical student, is the hard luck-loser allowing only the unearned run on five hits. Brown, a 21-game winner in the Pacific Coast League two years earlier, will finish the 1907 season with a 24-6 mark, accounting for 63 percent of the Cordovas' 38 wins.
